His body was interred on 25 Sep 1954 at Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, Kings Co., NY. Lot 37755, Section 151. José was employed; Coffee Importer. New York Times obituary for J Henrique Scholtz

J Henrique Scholtz, Coffee Importer, 81

J Henrique Scholtz, a founder and former member of Scholtz & Co, coffee importers, died yesterday in his home, 1 Fifth Ave, after a short illness. His age was 81. He was born in Caracas, Venezuela, where he still maintained a residence, and came to the US in 1902.

Formerly a coffee planter and exporter in Venezuela, Mr. Scholtz founded his concern here in 1906. He retired in 1948.

He was a Venezuelan representative at the Pan American Coffee Board here and at the Inter-American Coffee Board in Washington.

Mr Scholtz was a former member of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and the New York Cocoa Exchange.

Surviving are his widow, Berta; two sons, J Henry Jr.. and Arthur; three daughters, Miss Gertrude Scholtz, Mrs Norman Smith and Mrs Fredrick Cooper; two sisters in Venezuela, six grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

As a child he went to the docks with his father and got a rowboat. He rowed out the ships coming in and traded with the captains. He was doing so well that one of his sisters decided to invest in his operation. She bought another rowboat and hired someone to row it. Later he started to import Steinway pianos. They became a status symbol in Caracas and he did very well until he saturated the market. At one point he had a plantation (possibly coffee) outside of Caracas. One day the foreman came into town and said that he was having trouble with one of the workers. Henrique told him that he did not want to hear about it and that he, the foreman, was paid to solve the problems himself. The next time the foreman was in town Henrique asked how he solved the problem with the worker. The foreman said he shot the worker. At that point Henrique decided to sell the plantation. He first came to America in 1896. After marrying in 1900, he and his family went back and forth between New York and Venezuela. Arthur (the only one child born out of Venezuela) was born in Brooklyn but on his birth certificate his parents residence was listed as Caracas. Shortly after the turn of the century when a new dictator took over the country the people were hopeful things would finally improve. Henrique and his friend, Lorenzo Marturet, went to the palace where a crowd of people were calling for the new leader to come out and speak. The leader came out on the balcony and said "Let the people be quiet." The leader then returned to his room. Henrique turned to his friend and said that it was time to move out of the country and move to New York. His friend said that he would go only if New York had a good opera. They packed up their things and took their families to New York. They bought adjoining Brownstones in Brooklyn and went into business together. Within a year his friend moved back to Venezuela. In 1906, he and his brother Carlos founded of Scholtz & Co where he worked until he retired in 1948.

According to the 1910 census, he first came to America in 1896. After marrying he and his family move back and forth between New York and Venezuela. His wife first came in 1902. In the 1910 census he was listed as a merchant whose general nature of business was commission. He rented the home where he lived with his family, his mother-in-law and his sister Louisa who had just come that year. While in Brooklyn he had all his relatives from Venezuela and Curaçao over at Christmas time. Not all the families were as well off as his so all the children were very happy when everyone of them received a present. His common name was Henrique. José immigrated to on 18 Dec 1895.^{19,20} He was naturalized on 1 May 1916 at Brooklyn, Kings County, New York.²⁴

But, his life's work was in printing. He was a printer for the government and he worked for and later bought Curaçao's first newspaper, De Curaçaosche Couran. Below is a translation of his obituary from his former paper from Friday September 12, 1884:

On Tuesday September 9th the island suffered a painful loss with the death of August Lebrecht Status Muller.

Born in 1797, in his 87 years he lived a really useful life, useful not only for himself, but also for the community. Not many inhabitants of Curaçao have been called to serve in so many positions and in such an outstanding manner as Mr. Muller. More than 43 years he served this newspaper, starting in September 1833 when he bought the printing company together with our father, Mr. J.F. Neumann, from the widow William Lee, and at the same time served the government as printers of this newspaper and became officially appointed as government printers. After the death of our deeply missed father, on November 20, 1868, mister Muller became our partner and we continued in the same pleasurable and friendly cooperation until January 1876, when he was honorably retired as government printer with a pension - as such having giving half of his life to this newspaper. We regretted his retirement sincerely, because even in advanced age he was full of life and clear of mind.

His concern with the newspaper was not his only service to the community, he was valuable also as chairman of the bank, of the school commission, as member of the former colonial council and afterwards from 1869 until 1876 as member of the ruling council, major commander of the militia, certified translator and interpreter,Justly, Reverend Hamelberg referred to him in his speech as an example as a father and a citizen.

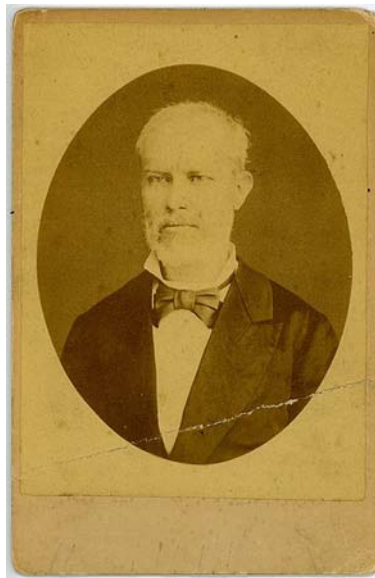

Many people attended mister Mullers burial and honored him by accompanying him to his last resting place.

We are submitting our deepest sympathy with the passing away of this unforgettable friend of our father and of us to his family."⁴⁰

- iii. JOSEPH^{48,54,55,48,48} was born on 7 Oct 1839 at Curaçao, Netherlands Antillies; August Lebergt Status Muller went with Frederik Anthon to register Joseph's birth. Almost 60 years later August and Frederik's grandchildren (José Henrique Scholtz and Joanna Catharina van Daalen) would marry.⁴⁸ He married Eliza Eleanor Peniston on 13 Feb 1868 at Smith's, Bermuda; Parish Church.⁵⁶ He died on 21 Feb 1911 at Hamilton, Bermuda, at age 71; From Wisden Cricketers' Almanack Obituary: CAPT. JOSEPH SCHOLTZ died suddenly at Hamilton, Bermuda, on February 21st, aged 71. He was born at Curaso, and was one of the oldest members of the Hamilton C.C.

The first record of Joseph after his birth is traveling to New York on 3 Mar 1876 and he was naturalized a few weeks later. When he arrived he was listed as a Master Mariner and as a Seaman when he was naturalized. Later he was known as a ship Captain. There are at least two records of him returning from Europe and several records from Bermuda where Eliza was from.

Joseph and Eliza resided in Brooklyn from 1876 until around 1883 when they lived in Montclair, NJ. By 1903, the last time Joseph shows up in a record, he was listed as residing in Bermuda.

Maritime records show him as captain of various vessels, some of which he owned, from 1872 until 1883 when he seems to have retired and moved to New Jersey.

After Joseph and Eliza moved to New York, many of Johan's Children came to visit their aunt and uncle. Several eventually moved there. Carlos was the first. He came in 1882 and likely lived with Joseph and Eliza. After Carlos were Luis, Josephina, Eliza, Rosa Amalia, Alfrado, Isabel, and Henrique. At some point there was a falling out between Carlos and Joseph and they stopped talking to each other.

He was naturalized on 31 Mar 1876 at 270 South 4th Street, Brooklyn, Kings County, NY; His occupation was listed as Seaman, his former nationality was Dutch, and it was witnessed by Henry P. Kirkham of Hempstead, LI, NY.⁵⁷

ELIZA ELEANOR PENISTON^{56,58} was born in 1847 at Hamilton Parish, Bermuda.

Johan died circa 1900; His grandson, Jose Henrique Jr., believed that Johan died about the same time he was born.

He and his family lived in Caracas. He was Consul in La Guaira, Venezuela for Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and others because he was fluent in several languages. Today, La Guaira is just a few minute ride down the hill from Caracas, however, before the turn of the century it was a long trip. So, Johan used to live during the week in La Guaira and go home to Caracas when he could.

Johan had a sister named Mimi. This we know from a circa 1860 picture with the caption "Tia Mimi hermana mia querada de Papa LH" and a picture of Carlos with the caption "Para mis queridos tia Mimi, Mamachi + Papachi, de su sobrino Carlos, Julio 16/1894."⁶⁸

Obdulia Roldán Scholtz

OBDULIA ROLDÁN.^{17,45} Obdulia was born at Venezuela. Obdulia died after 7 Mar 1911.⁶⁹ Her parents were said to have been from Sevilla, Spain. Their family may have owned a winery there. The 1910 census for her son Henrique says that she was born in Spain and was Spanish. This probably meant Venezuela. Henrique and most of his children were listed the same way.

- vii. OBDULIA EMMA Obdulia was born on 5 Sep 1906. She married Teunis Schenck. (see # 54.).

Luis Roldán Scholtz

60. LUIS ROBERTO⁵ SCHOLTZ (Johar⁴, Maria³ Möller, Cornelia² Engelbron, Joannes¹).^{17,75,45,77} Luis was born circa 1869 at La Guaira or Caracas, Venezuela. He married Avalina Patcheco. Luis died before 1946.⁷⁰

Luis was one of the founders of the first radio station in Venezuela. The following is from radiodx.com and is copyright of Ragusa Media Group, PO Box 14339, Wellington, New Zealand:

This year marks the 77 years of the issuing of the first official license to install a radio station in Venezuela; this first license was granted by the Ministry of Public Works and Economy the 25 of September, 1925, to Mr. Arturo Santana and Mr. Luis Scholtz, who founded "Arturo Santana, Scholtz & Company" with the purpose of operating the "Empresa Venezolana de Radiotelefonía"; it was Mr. Alfredo Moller who had the honor of being the first official announcer of this station, thus becoming the first ever radio announcer in Venezuela. This license not only give them the exclusive right to broadcast, but also the exclusive rights for the commercialization of the receivers. Friday, April 2, 1926, arrived at the port of La Guaira from New York the equipments for the first Venezuelan radio station.

This first station was called AYRE Broadcasting, their studies were located in a building in the corner of El Tejar, and the antenna and the transmitter in a lot nearby the bullring the "Nuevo Circo", not to far from the Bolivar square in Caracas. AYRE began its transmissions the night of May 23, 1926.

The newspaper El Universal, in its edition of May 24, 1926, depicts its inauguration as: "The Station AYRE Central Broadcasting of Caracas, inaugurated last night, was constructed by the powerful American company Western and its reach is of 2,000 miles, it is moved by two electrical motors, its power is of 12 horses. Its height is 65 meters". Thanks to the technical capacity of Mr. Luis Scholtz, AYRE was as good as any of the best stations of its time; the station consisted of a transmitters made by the Western Electric and towers of 65 meters height to support the antenna. Some historical reviews indicate that its power was 1 Kilowatt, but if what was published by the newspaper El Universal is correct, and its power was 12 horses, then its actual power was + - 9 Kilowatt (12 HP multiplied by the conversion factor that is 746).

Unfortunately this station was in the air a very short time; the dictator of the moment, General Juan Vicente Gomez, did not see Mr. Arturo Santana with very good eyes, Santana was also a colonel in the Venezuelan army and aide-de-camp of his older son, General Jose Vicente Gomez, who was exiled in Switzerland for political reasons; and taking advantage of the serious political turmoil of April 7, 1928, when two military bases in Caracas revolt and a military conspiracy starts up, in which also some university leaders who in the end would finish jailed participated, Gomez, adducing reasons of "state security", ordered the closing of the station, this action marked the end of the first chapter of the broadcasting history in Venezuela. AYRE was born thanks to the political influence of Colonel Santana, and is this same political influence what determine its closing.

AVALINA PATCHECO^{45,77} was born circa 1873 at Venezuela. She and Luis were ostracized by his family because she was of South American Indian decent. Roger Muller remembers her "as a loving grandmother and she cared about humanity. She never turned anyone away who was destitute." Her common name was Du Du; by her grandchildren.

Children of Luis Roberto⁵ Scholtz and Avalina Patcheco were as follows:

64. i. JOHN CHRISTOPHER⁶ John was born on 25 Mar 1893 at Caracas, Venezuela. He married Luisa (--?--).
65. ii. MARIA LUISA Maria was born on 7 Jul 1897 at Caracas, Venezuela. She married Carlos Antonio Status Muller. Maria died on 25 Jul 1960 at age 63.

67. iv. VICTOR was born circa 1901 at Caracas. He married Berta (--?--).
68. v. OLGA was born circa 1904 at Caracas. She married Willis Everett.

Henrique Scholtz

61. JOSÉ HENRIQUE⁵ SCHOLTZ (Johan⁴, Maria³ Möller, Cornelia² Engelbron, Joannes¹).^{17,18,19,22,20,21,23} José was born on 2 May 1873 at La Guaira, Venezuela. He married Joanna Catharina van Daalen in 1900.¹⁹ He married Berta Azerm. José died on 23 Sep 1954 at 1 Fifth Av, Brooklyn, Kings Co., NY, at age 81. His body was interred on 25 Sep 1954 at Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, Kings Co., NY. Lot 37755, Section 151.

New York Times obituary for J Henrique Scholtz

J Henrique Scholtz, Coffee Importer, 81

J Henrique Scholtz, a founder and former member of Scholtz & Co, coffee importers, died yesterday in his home, 1 Fifth Ave, after a short illness. His age was 81. He was born in Caracas, Venezuela, where he still maintained a residence, and came to the US in 1902.

Formerly a coffee planter and exporter in Venezuela, Mr. Scholtz founded his concern here in 1906. He retired in 1948.

He was a Venezuelan representative at the Pan American Coffee Board here and at the Inter-American Coffee Board in Washington.

Mr Scholtz was a former member of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and the New York Cocoa Exchange.

Surviving are his widow, Berta; two sons, J Henry Jr.. and Arthur; three daughters, Miss Gertrude Scholtz, Mrs Norman Smith and Mrs Fredrick Cooper; two sisters in Venezuela, six grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

As a child he went to the docks with his father and got a rowboat. He rowed out the ships coming in and traded with the captains. He was doing so well that one of his sisters decided to invest in his operation. She bought another rowboat and hired someone to row it. Later he started to import Steinway pianos. They became a status symbol in Caracas and he did very well until he saturated the market. At one point he had a plantation (possibly coffee) outside of Caracas. One day the foreman came into town and said that he was having trouble with one of the workers. Henrique told him that he did not want to hear about it and that he, the foreman, was paid to solve the problems himself. The next time the foreman was in town Henrique asked how he solved the problem with the worker. The foreman said he shot the worker. At that point Henrique decided to sell the plantation. He first came to America in 1896. After marrying in 1900, he and his family went back and forth between New York and Venezuela. Arthur (the only one child born out of Venezuela) was born in Brooklyn but on his birth certificate his parents residence was listed as Caracas. Shortly after the turn of the century when a new dictator took over the country the people were hopeful things would finally improve. Henrique and his friend, Lorenzo

Marturet, went to the palace where a crowd of people were calling for the new leader to come out and speak. The leader came out on the balcony and said "Let the people be quiet." The leader then returned to his room. Henrique turned to his friend and said that it was time to move out of the country and move to New York. His friend said that he would go only if New York had a good opera. They packed up their things and took their families to New York. They bought adjoining Brownstones in Brooklyn and went into business together. Within a year his friend moved back to Venezuela. In 1906, he and his brother Carlos founded of Scholtz & Co where he worked until he retired in 1948.

According to the 1910 census, he first came to America in 1896. After marrying he and his family move back and forth between New York and Venezuela. His wife first came in 1902. In the 1910 census he was listed as a merchant whose general nature of business was commission. He rented the home where he lived with his family, his mother-in-law and his sister Louisa who had just come that year. While in Brooklyn he had all his relatives from Venezuela and Curaçao over at Christmas time. Not all the families were as well off as his so all the children were very happy when everyone of them received a present. His common name was Henrique. José was employed; Coffee Importer.
